SPRING RECIPE

The weather is warming up and one of the first foods to appear are sweet peas in pods. They are so tender that you can just pop the pods and scoop out the tiny peas to eat raw. In France housewives like to cook the peas still in their pods because the pods are tender and full of flavour. Peas are great with fish and this recipe is very simple to make and tasty.

OCEAN TROUT WITH CRUSHED PEAS

Tasmanian Ocean Trout has a distinctive rosy pink/orange flesh and high omega-6 content which makes them an ideal eating fish. The flavour is more subtle and less salty than Atlantic or farmed salmon and has a creamy succulent texture.

- 1kg ocean trout fillet
- 1-2 tablespoons olive oil
- 500gm fresh peas in pods, podded
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh marjoram
- 2 tablespoons classic vinaigrette
- Sea salt and freshly ground pepper

Feel the fish or any pin bones with your fingertips and remove them. Cut across the fillet into 4 220-250gm portions and trim neatly. Using a very sharp knife, score the skin in thin parallel lines, leaving a 1cm border uncut all round. Rub both sides of the fish with oil and set aside.

Cook the peas in boiling salted water for 3-4 minutes until just tender. Drain and return to the pan. Crush the peas against the side of the pan with a fork so you have a chunky puree. Season and stir in the chopped marjoram and vinaigrette. Set aside.

Heat a non-stick frying pan. When you can feel a good heat rising, place the fillets in the pan skin side down. Season and cook for around 4 minutes so the skin becomes crispy. Carefully turn and cook the other side for 1 minute just to brown lightly. Season again.

Spoon the crushed peas in to the centre of four warmed dinner plates and place the fish on top.
